

KIM POSSIBLE: SEASON 4
09.28.05 pre-amble show bible ramble

Greetings TBD writer,

The adventures of Kim, Ron, and Rufus are continuing in THIS, the fourth season of episodes. The fans screamed, complained, blogged, petitioned, prayed to whatever naked mole-rat god they worship until finally- We're doing ANOTHER SEASON!

So here's the sitch-

Season Three ended with the Disney Channel Original movie "So the Drama". (available to rent or own on DVD) Kim and Ron had defeated Drakken, Shego, their army of synthodrones, and subdued the attacking toy robots (l'il Diablo) from Bueno Nacho. As the dust settled, our heroes found themselves together on the dance floor in the waning hours of their junior prom. The time was right, the music was soft, the hormones were raging - Kim and Ron kissed. These best-of-friends hooked up at last and "Kim Possible" faded out for good. Fans world-wide went into a frenzy. Mark & Bob (the show's creators) packed their bags, flew to Spain, and vanished in sangria-stained cloud of obscurity. But now they're back.

In this next season there are going to be some changes, but most importantly the tone of "Kim Possible" will remain consistent with previous seasons. Here's the new stuff:

- It's senior year. Kim's still on the cheer squad and saving the world.
- Yes! Kim and Ron are dating, however the way they interact with each other will remain basically the same. We will get humor from this new dynamic. Ron will think it's cool they're BF&GF, but he'll also stress at times about their "relationship" and we'll play the comedy from this. It's a bigger issue for Ron than it is for Kim. Other than that, it's the same ol' Kim and Ron on missions.
- Bonnie has BIG problems with Kim and Ron being together and she'll be up to her usual mean-girl tactics.

- Jim & Tim (Kim's younger brothers, the "Tweebs") have been skipped ahead, moved up to 9th grade- so now they're in school with Kim. And just when she thought High School was going to get fun.
- For the first batch of scripts (4 to 6) Drakken is going to remain in prison. We plan on having fun checking on him in his cell for one-off quick gags to play out his frustration. Shego, however, will get broken out ahead of Drakken and we hope to get a least one story with her teamed up with Junior again.
- Drakken will eventually get sprung from the big house, by Aliens. Yes. Aliens. So... buckle-up RocketMonkeys, we're goin' into space!
- Mom & Dad Possible are now divorced. No, no... just kidding. They're doing fine and same as they ever were. Brain surgeon and rocket scientist, happily married.
- However... Ron's parents are going to adopt a baby- which Ron will discover when he's moved of his room and into the basement. Lotta' life changes for Ron going on in this season.
- Wade will now be mobile, leaving his domicile to work in the field when needed. We finally broke the convention of Wade never leaving his room at the end of last season. While Wade may meet up with Kim and Ron on a mission, he will not be tagging along all the time. We'll be giving him a super-kimmunicator when he's out of his room that allows him to remain in contact with Team Possible.
- THE SUPER-SUIT: In "So the Drama" Kim had a bitchin' cool suit that gave her hyped-up powers that she used to save the day. We thought it was the end of the series, and never figured we'd be back... so, um... having Kim wearing an ultra-powerful suit all the time is going to be problematic. But the fans like it, so we're going to find a way to use it sparingly (only extreme circumstances) in this season. We will feature the super-suit in the first episode and come up with a reason why it has to be shelved for repairs or reprogrammed etc. --- until Kim needs it again. Of course Ron will put it on at some point too- any chance to get some cross-dressing in the show.

- KIM'S CAR: We are going to give Kim a car in this next season. In an early episode she will buy a clunker 1st car (using her babysitting money). Jim & Tim will make a deal to fix it up and keep it running, in return Kim has to drive them around (this spells trouble). The Tweebs' fixes to the car will naturally trick it out a la James Bond, but all these fantastic laser blasters, rocket launchers, hover coils, cloaking skins, etc. will work within a wide margin of error and success.
- OLD VILLAINS & NEW VILLAINS: In addition to our tried and true bad guys: Drakken, Shego, Dementor, DNAmy, Senior Sr., Junior, Duff, etc. we will, as always, be looking to create new bad guys for the show- something that's a lot harder to do than one would think. Since Kim Possible villains are not the truly evil, overarching, cartoon types in typical kid's shows, it's difficult to find the right blend. There are a couple ideas we have in the works. One is a theatrical, self-important, pompous, melodramatic, reptilian villain named: Shakespeare. Okay, forget what I said about typical cartoon villains.
- This next season we want to pick up the pace a bit, with faster gags, cut-aways, one off bits, etc. to amp up the humor.

And that's most of the new stuff for season four. There really is no writer's bible for the series. What was written way back when Kim first hit the air is woefully out of date, but there are a couple of websites that are extremely thorough and provide all the info you need. Before you pitch, check out these sites and the episode synopses to see where we've already been. This will save time, disappointment and years of counseling:
